COLORED CONVENTIONS

BRINGING NINETEENTH-CENTURY BLACK ORGANIZING TO DIGITAL LIFE

ABOUT THE COLORED CONVENTIONS

From 1830 until well after the Civil War, free and fugitive Blacks came together in state and national political "Colored Conventions." Before the war, they strategized about how to achieve educational, labor and legal justice at a moment when Black rights were constricting nationally and locally. And after the war, they continued to convene to discuss local, national and international possibilities, problems and challenges.

The delegates to these meetings included the most well-known, if mostly male, writers, organizers, church leaders, newspaper editors, and entrepreneurs in the canon of early African-American leadership—and many whose names and histories have long been forgotten. All that is left of this phenomenal effort are the minutes. Even these materials are rare and can only be accessed through out-of-print volumes.

This project seeks to not only learn about the lives of these male delegates, the places where they met and the social networks that they created but to also account for the crucial work done by Black women in the broader social networks that made these conventions possible.

ColoredConventions.org endeavors to transform teaching and learning about this historic collective organizing effort—and about the many leaders and places involved in it—bringing them to digital life for a new generation of undergraduate and graduate students and researchers across disciplines, for high school teachers, and for community members interested in the history of church, educational and entrepreneurial engagement.

 50th ANNIVERSARY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HUMANITIES FIFTY YEARS

STILL RAISING HELL

The Art, Activism, and Archives of James V. Hatch and Camille Billops

For more than 50 years, Camille Billops and James V. Hatch have been stewards of African American history and memory. As artists, activists, and collectors the duo has been at the fore in raising awareness and concern about the "isms" (racism, classism, and ageism) embedded in the complex narratives that have shaped American culture, politics, and identities throughout American history.

EMORY LIBRARIES & INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Stuart A. Rose Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library

The screenshot shows the 'Social Justice Resources' guide page from the University of Maryland Libraries. At the top, there is a red header with the University of Maryland logo and the text 'UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'. Below this, the 'UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES GUIDES' logo is displayed. A navigation breadcrumb trail reads: 'UMD Libraries > LibGuides > Library Resources and Research > Social Justice Resources > Home'. A search bar is located in the top right corner with the text 'Search this Guide' and a 'Search' button.

The main heading is 'Social Justice Resources'. Below it, a sub-heading reads: 'This site supports the UMD campus community in celebrating the Social Justice Day on April 18th, 2017.' A search bar is also present below the heading.

On the left side, there is a vertical navigation menu with the following items: Home, Immigration, Economic Development & Inequality, Environmental Justice, Creating Healthy Communities, Media and Inequality, Futures from the Sky, Pedagogic Art Project, and Contact Us.

Below the banner, a section titled 'Current Events' highlights 'Social Justice Day' with the text: 'Please join the University of Maryland campus on April 18th, 2017 in the Stamp Student Union to explore diverse topics related to emerging movements for social justice. More'. A small graphic for Social Justice Day is shown below this text.

A section titled 'This site highlights research published in the recent years within the following themes:' lists the following topics: Immigration in the 21st Century, Economic Development and Inequality, Environmental Justice, Creating Healthy Communities, and Media and Inequality. Below this list, a paragraph states: 'With the creation of this guide, we hope to spark cross disciplinary dialogue on social justice issues and to provide opportunities for future collaboration within and outside the UMD scholarly community.'

At the bottom of the page, there is a call to action: 'Follow the conversations in Twitter' with a Twitter icon and the hashtag '#SocialJusticeUMD'.

Introduction

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Libraries are academic leaders in valuing diversity in the workplace and in meeting the needs of the University's goal to welcome a "diversity of ideas and people" in Nebraska and globally.

Proactive support for diversity is integrated into the operational fabric of University of Nebraska-Lincoln Libraries through our strategic plan priorities and through the University's core values. This web page provides links to multicultural and diversity research tools, digital and physical collections, programs, and services.

The Diversity Librarian works closely with the Diversity Committee and other University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty and staff to support the Institute for Ethnic Studies programs, Women and Gender Studies, including LGBTQ+Sexuality Studies and other related areas of research. In addition, we strive to support and fulfill the information needs of University of Nebraska-Lincoln community members engaged in multicultural and diversity research.

Mission Statement

"University of Nebraska-Lincoln Libraries values diversity and empowers our staff to take active responsibility in developing a supportive diverse environment. We will use our talents, expertise, collections, and services to coordinate with University of Nebraska-Lincoln's effort to embrace diversity" (University of Nebraska-Lincoln University Libraries, 2008).

Background

This guide aims to provide Native American perspectives on the Dakota Access Pipeline, a 1,700 mile oil pipeline to be built through the land of the Standing Rock Sioux people and across the Missouri River which provides drinking water and water for agriculture for millions of Americans. The tribe was not consulted during the planning or approval of this project though their ancestral lands and sacred sites would be devastated. Protests against the pipeline began with tribal members and more people and organizations are joining the effort. The phrase Mni wiconi is Lakota and means "Water is Life" which is a guiding principle of the protest.

Finding the coverage of this issue lacking Native voices we attempt to share that here. The guide is not meant to be comprehensive but will be updated as we find more sources.

The screenshot shows the 'Economic Privilege' research guide page on the University of Oregon Libraries website. The page has a green header with the 'UO Libraries' logo and a navigation menu with items like 'Research Support', 'Services', 'Collections', 'Library Accounts', 'About', and 'Ask Us'. Below the header, there's a breadcrumb trail: 'Research Guides / UO Libraries Wide / Economic Privilege / Start'. The main title is 'Economic Privilege', followed by a subtitle: 'A beginner's guide to researching economic privilege using resources in the UO Libraries and elsewhere'. On the left, there's a sidebar with a 'Start' button and links for 'Books', 'Articles', and 'Multimedia'. The main content area is divided into sections: 'About this Guide' (explaining the purpose and resources), 'Related Guides' (listing guides like 'Economics Research Guide', 'Heterosexism', 'Transgender Studies & Cisgender Privilege', and 'Male Privilege'), and 'Need Help?' (with icons for chat, email, phone, and text). There's also a 'LibrarySearch' box and a 'Student Supervisor' section for Hana Chan with an 'Email Me' button and contact information. At the bottom, there's a footer with 'Last Updated: Apr 18, 2017 1:16 PM', a URL, a 'Print Page' button, and 'Login to LibApps'. The page also includes subject and tag information.

The screenshot shows the 'Guides' page for 'Diversity at Penn Libraries: Resources'. The page features a navigation bar with categories like Library Info, Facilities, Research, Collections, Courseware, and Tools. A search bar is present with the text 'Search Library guides'. Below the navigation, there are tabs for 'Overview', 'Resources', 'Video, Blog, and Other Resources', 'GOLD History and Initiatives', 'GOLD Events', and 'Recruitment'. The main content area is divided into three columns:

- Resources for Students Affected by Sexual Violence, Dating Violence or Stalking: A text-based resource with a date of September 21, 2016, and a link to 'Campus and Community Resources for Students'.
- Databases for Diversity Related Research and Current Events: A list of databases including 'Ethnic NewsWatch, 1959-' (providing access to 200+ ethnic press newspapers), 'America: History and Life' (history of the US and Canada), 'Black Literature Index' (bibliographic citations for fiction, poetry, and literary reviews), 'Early American Newspapers, 1690-1900' (newspapers from before the Civil War), 'Hispanic American Periodicals Index (HAPI)' (covers Latin America and U.S. Latinos), and 'Proquest History Vault' (links to various historical documents).

Human Library

Syracuse University Libraries' Fourth Annual Human Library was held in Bird Library on April 5, 2017 from noon-4 p.m. See some of the coverage:

- Photos from the 2017 event
- CitrusTV feature of the 2017 event
- SU news announcement from the 2017 event
- "If These Books Could Talk": A feature on Human Libraries in American Libraries (June 2017)

HUMAN LIBRARY

What is a Human Library?

A Human Library is an event that encourages people from different backgrounds to talk with and learn from each other. Human books are volunteers who are willing to share their stories and/or their expertise. Participants can "borrow" human books for up to 20 minutes at a time in order to have a conversation and ask questions about the book's topic.

The library is a safe place to have some positive conversations to challenge stereotypes and prejudices, or just to get to know another individual.

This event is part of a regional Human Library Program with support from the Central NY Library Resources Council (CLRC).

Event Partners

We are excited to have the support of a number of other partners on campus. Partners for our 2017 Human Library include:

- Library and Information Science Student Association (LISSA), School of Information Studies
- Office of Learning Communities
- Office of Multicultural Affairs
