BYU Family Historian

BYU Family Historian was a periodical written annually from 2002 to 2007 by The Center for Family History and Genealogy. Assorted authors including Howard C. Bybee, David H. Pratt, and Mark I. Choate wrote articles for the publication. The Center for Family History and Genealogy was established at Brigham Young University in order to utilize BYU resources to simplify the process of finding of ancestors and the discovery of the world in which they lived. The Center also supported student training for life-long temple and family history service. Partners of the Center include: BYU Religious Education, BYU Department of History, BYU School of Family Life, BYU Computer Science, State Archives of Niedersachsen, Germany, and the State Archives of Bavaria, Germany.

BYU Studies Quarterly

Brigham Young University's premiere Mormon academic journal since 1959. BYU Studies is dedicated to publishing scholarly religious literature in the form of books, journals, and dissertations that is qualified, significant, and inspiring. We want to share these publications to help promote faith, continued learning, and further interest in our LDS history with those in the world who have a positive interest in this work. The mission of this publication is to be faithful and scholarly throughout, harmonizing wherever possible the intellectual and the spiritual on subjects of interest to Latter-day Saints and to scholars studying the Latter-day Saint experience. The archive on this site contains all but the most recent three years of BYU Studies Quarterly content. Visit our website at byustudies.byu.edu for more information about BYU Studies and the BYU Studies Quarterly journal.

Criterion: A Journal of Literary Criticism

Criterion: A Journal of Literary Criticism seeks original, well-researched, and intellectually rigorous essays written from diverse critical perspectives and about texts from any time period or literary tradition. Submissions are peer-reviewed by a selection board at BYU, and final decisions are made by the journal's two Editors-in-Chief in consultation with a faculty advisor. We are currently working on our Winter 2017 issue, scheduled for publication in April of 2017. We will begin accepting submissions for our Winter 2018 issue in early September 2017. Submissions to both the general section and the Forum should be between 3000 and 6000 words (not including the bibliography). All submissions should be double-spaced, written in English, and formatted according to the most recent MLA guidelines. Submissions should be uploaded as MS Word files through our website and online submission system. For its Winter 2017 issue, Criterion has reserved space for multiple essays that respond to Professor Scott Peeples's Forum prompt "What Can Poe Do for You?"

Mormon Pacific Historical Society

Fostering the study and recording of the history of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Hawaii and the Pacific Islands.

The Mormon Pacific Historical Society was founded in 1978 by Lance D. Chase and Kenneth W. Baldrige at Brigham Young University-Hawaii to foster the study and recording of LDS Church history in Hawaii and the Pacific Islands. Annual meetings were held at various locations and papers were presented, displays prepared, and local folks "talk story" about events in local LDS history. All of these were then transcribed and/or published in the organization's Proceedings.

Mormon Studies Review

A publication of the Neal A. Maxwell Institute for Religious Scholarship.

Since 1989, the Mormon Studies Review published review essays to help serious readers make informed choices and judgments about books and other publications on topics related to the Latter-day Saint religious tradition. These publications, originally produced by the Foundation for Ancient Research and Mormon Studies (FARMS), included substantial freestanding essays that made further contributions to the field of Mormon studies. The journal was originally called Review of Books on the Book of Mormon beginning in 1989, then FARMS Review of Books in 1996, followed by The FARMS Review in 2003. In 2011 the journal was renamed Mormon Studies Review. These volumes are located here in ScholarsArchive under the title Review of Books on the Book of Mormon. In 2014, under the auspices of BYU's Neal A. Maxwell Institute for Religious Scholarship, Mormon Studies Review relaunched with a new format and editorial direction. Volumes of this latest iteration are located in ScholarsArchive under the title Mormon Studies Review.

Religious Educator: Perspectives on the Restored Gospel

The Religious Educator serves the needs and interests of those who study and teach the restored gospel of Jesus Christ. The distinct focuses of the journal are on pedagogical studies related to teaching religion; studies on scripture, doctrine, and history of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons); and Latter-day Saint pioneers across the globe. The journal also publishes interviews that touch upon difficult topics, timely topics, and key figures in Religious Education. The beliefs of the respective authors do not necessarily reflect the views of the Religious Studies Center, Brigham Young University, or The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Open Journals

The Duke University Libraries partners with members of the Duke community to publish peer-reviewed scholarly journals.

Publish a Journal

If you are a member of the Duke community and are interested in creating a peer-reviewed online scholarly journal or in changing an existing print scholarly journal into one that is available online, the Duke University Libraries may be able to help you set up and host an online journal.

What We Provide

We can help members of the Duke community establish an online journal using the Open Journal Systems (OJS) software. We host the software and show you how to use it. We can provide guidance and advice as you format your journal and develop its sections.

Why Open Journal Systems (OJS)?

Open Journal Systems (OJS) was developed by the Public Knowledge Project to manage the overhead of creating and sustaining a journal and to make open access publishing simpler. Today, more than 7,500 journals use OJS as their publishing platform. OJS will guide you as you set up a journal. Its templates will help you design your journal's appearance and its internal structure. Online publication removes the barrier of printing costs. OJS's real strength is the way it helps you manage the publishing process — from receiving submissions and editing them to designing layouts and publishing works. OJS is online and will help you track and manage articles as they move through the review process, keeping the publication process on schedule.

For more information contact Paolo Mangiafico at library-ojs@duke.edu.

Cultural Anthropology is the journal of the Society for Cultural Anthropology, a section of the American Anthropological Association (AAA). It is one of 22 journals published by the AAA, and it is widely regarded as one of the flagship journals of its discipline. In March 2013, Cultural Anthropology announced that it would go open access in 2014. Duke University Libraries are providing technology support for the back-end editorial platform.

All KU editors, even those whose journals are not hosted by the Libraries, are invited to join the KUEDITORS-L online discussion list where KU editors can share information. Contact Marianne Reed at mreed@ku.edu for more information.

Digital Publishing Systems

KU Libraries support a variety of software platforms to publish content in different formats, and can assist with moving traditional journal and monograph content to an online environment, as well as with publishing "born-digital" scholarship designed specifically for online publication. We also offer tools to help manage and streamline the production and editorial work involved in producing scholarly journals.

- KU ScholarWorks is a digital repository for scholarly work created by the faculty and staff of the University of Kansas. KU ScholarWorks makes important research available to a wider audience and helps assure its long-term preservation.
- Journals@KU supports the publication of scholarly journals online, and assists journal editors with the management, editorial work, and production work involved in producing scholarly journals. Our journal services are built on the Open Journal Systems \(OJS\) journal management software designed to facilitate online peer-reviewed publishing.
- XTF is a system for building and providing access to full-text, XML-encoded resources, such as TEI-encoded monographs and EAD finding aids.

Journals Hosted by KU Libraries

KU Libraries provides journal editors with the technical infrastructure to publish their journals on either of two platforms: KU ScholarWorks, KU's institutional repository, which makes journals visible to a wide audience and assures their long term preservation and Open Journals System (OJS), which makes journals visible and assures their preservation, but also supports the entire editorial management workflow, including article submission, multiple rounds of peer-review, and indexing.

University Of Michigan: An Encyclopedic Survey, Bicentennial Edition

In 1937, when the University observed the 100th anniversary of its re-establishment in Ann Arbor, the University Committee on Archives declared that a treatment, in encyclopedic form, of the University's past and present accomplishments, by those most competent to chronicle them, would form a desirable and unique evidence of the progress of the University since its first establishment in 1817. [This led to an extraordinary collective effort that produced some 400 individual articles on the University's history. These were published in four volumes entitled The University of Michigan: An Encyclopedic Survey, appearing from 1942 to 1954. Updates of the entries for many University units were published in the 1970s. In recent years the entire work has been digitized and made available online.] In preparation for the University's bicentennial in 2017, the University's Committee on History and Traditions, the Bicentennial Planning Committee, and the Bentley Historical Library committed to updating the Encyclopedic Survey through the 2010s and to making it available in a new and easily navigated digital format. Successful Strategic Deception: A Case Study

This study concerns the controversial case of Alger Hiss, who was suspected of spying for Soviet Military intelligence. It does not concern his guilt or innocence but whether the U.S. Army Military intelligence used an undercover spy-catcher to penetrate Hiss's defense and to plant evidence forged to secure his perjury conviction. If so, Hiss's conviction, which ushered in the McCarthy era and thrust Richard Nixon to national prominence, represents an alarming intrusion of our military into civil affairs.

Reprints

Faculty Reprints Series

Michigan Publishing recently launched a new service for current or former University of Michigan faculty to bring their out-of-print titles (to which they own the rights) back into circulation by making an electronic version openly accessible in HathiTrust and Deep Blue, the university's institutional repository, and by making a softcover print version available on Amazon.com. To purchase titles, see our catalog of faculty reprints.

HathiTrust Reprints

Available in the HathiTrust Catalog

Michigan Publishing manages over 400,000 titles added to the print on demand stream from the HathiTrust digital repository via the Library's agreement with BookSurge/Amazon. These are public domain titles owned by the University of Michigan, which are first sent to HP for processing, then on to Amazon.com. Available titles can be searched and browsed within the HathiTrust catalog. Once you're viewing a particular title in HathiTrust, a "buy a copy" link will appear on the left-hand side of the page if the book is available for purchase as a reprint.

Michigan Historical Reprints Series

Our initial reprint offerings through the Michigan Historical Reprints Series contain nearly 10,000 public domain titles digitized by the Library as part of its digital reforming process. This process results in an electronic version of the full text that is freely available online in the Making of America \(MOA\) and Historical Mathematics collections. These same electronic files also are used to generate hardcover and softcover reprints.

Contemporaneity
ISSN 2153-5914 (online)

Contemporaneity: Historical Presence in Visual Culture aims to explore how the complexities of being in time find visual form. Crucial to this undertaking is accounting for how, from prehistory to the present, cultures around the world conceive of and construct their present and the concept of presentness visually. Through scholarly writings from a number of academic disciplines in the humanities, together with contributions from artists and filmmakers, Contemporaneity maps the diverse ways in which cultures use visual means to record, define, and interrogate their historical context and presence in time.

An Overview

The Gender & Women's Studies Librarian's Office publishes three periodicals on joint subscription, plus an online database videography on women, bibliographies, and occasional books.

The three periodicals are:

FEMINIST COLLECTIONS: A QUARTERLY OF WOMEN'S STUDIES RESOURCES features book reviews, news of new periodicals and special issues, articles on out-of-the-way materials: audiovisuals, electronic resources, microforms, and reports. Sample articles are online.

FEMINIST PERIODICALS: A CURRENT LISTING OF CONTENTS (4/yr, online only; subscribers will receive notification of each issue) reproduces tables of contents of over 150 women's studies journals and magazines, and includes publishing/subscription information on each periodical.

NEW BOOKS ON WOMEN, GENDER & FEMINISM (2/yr) is a subject-arranged bibliography with additional subject and author indexes to new books in English from academic, trade, small press, and feminist sources around the world. (formerly New Books on Women & Feminism)

Only joint subscriptions to all three are available.
