Job Descriptions
The Georgetown University Library’s Maker Hub Initiative provides a creative gathering place connecting Georgetown researchers, makers and entrepreneurs from across campus with specialized equipment and a collaborative atmosphere to design, solve problems and innovate. The Maker Hub Manager will help chart the direction of the Maker Hub Initiative and will oversee the daily operations by coordinating instructional activities, supervising a team of student peer mentors and maintaining safe, organized work areas with fully functional equipment.

This position provides support to individual students or interdisciplinary teams working on independent projects or course assignments that enhance classroom-learning experiences and contribute towards educating the whole person. The manager inspires discovery and experimentation, connecting Georgetown’s art, technology and business communities with new models of innovation in a low-stakes environment where they can work together to solve problems and learn from each other. A critical aspect of this position involves collaboration with makers from all areas of the University, including academic units, student groups and individual faculty, students and staff.

The Maker Hub Manager will be expected to have or develop expertise with all of the equipment offered, including 3D printers and scanners, a laser cutter, sewing machine, vinyl cutter, and electronics, in addition to a wide variety of tools for fabrication.

Requirements and Qualifications
Bachelor’s Degree
Practical Experience:
• 5 years experience working in a Maker Space or organization that connects art, technology and business communities.
• 2 years experience teaching.
Technical Qualifications or Specialized Certification:
• A background in the visual arts or the maker movement and the ability to use a variety of tools, including 3D printers and scanners, sewing machines, and laser cutters.
• Demonstrated experience using digital media and graphic design software.
• Experience with electronics and programming microcontrollers, including Raspberry pi and Arduino.

Business Researcher Position

The UK Libraries Reference Department has a student position available as a Business researcher. The position is funded by the Kentucky Small Business Development Center and would consist of doing secondary market research for KSBDC counselors to use with their entrepreneurial clients. KSBDC is a non-profit organization that helps entrepreneurs start businesses or change existing ones.

The research usually involves searching in UK’s business databases and other resources for articles and reports that would help the entrepreneurs. The researcher would then write up a short synopsis of what he or she found for the counselor to use with the client. The topics vary widely -- from very high tech -- like nanotechnology companies -- to very mundane -- like a bicycle shop or a liquor store. It’s usually pretty interesting and the researcher would get a lot of experience working with business databases -- which is very helpful if you want to work in an academic or corporate library.

The person filling this position does not necessarily need to have a business background – just good researching and writing skills, an ability to work independently, and a willingness to learn. Creativity, flexibility, and persistence would also be good qualities to have. The position is for 20 hours per week and pays $8.80 per hour. Though the pay is low, it is great experience and looks good on a resume. Several people who have had this position in the past are working as Academic Librarians at research universities.
